A Message from the President

As I sat in the stands September 26 at our first Homecoming game in many years, I thought about football as a metaphor for renewal. I scanned the stands and saw thousands of people shouting in unison for the Chargers, a team that just five and a half years ago had ceased to exist. Sporting events have the ability to unite a campus in a way that few other activities can.

Football's rebirth at the University of New Haven required the efforts of many supporters. Director of Athletics Deborah Chin and I worked for years to have UNH accepted into the Northeast-10 Conference. UNH alumnus and Board of Governors member Ralph F. DellaCamera, Jr. '75 B.S., stepped forward to fund a major renovation of our existing field. The field is named in honor of Ralph's father, Ralph F. DellaCamera, who graced us with his presence that Homecoming day. Head Football Coach Pete Rossomando — a veteran who learned the craft of coaching under former UNH coach Tony Sparano '84 B.S., now head coach of the Miami Dolphins — left the University at Albany to lead the rebuilding of our team. With their support, and with yours, we have made huge strides at the University of New Haven. Those changes required planning, strategy and a strong belief in our mission, the very same attributes a football team needs to complete a pass for a touchdown in the waning moments of a game. Our efforts remind me of a quote from the legendary coach Vince Lombardi, who said, “Winning isn't everything, but making the effort to win is.”

The University has reached many goals in recent years. With your help, we will continue to aspire to greatness. If you didn't hear me shouting “thank you!” in the stands that day, please hear me now. Thank you, most sincerely, for supporting our efforts, on the field and beyond.

Incoming Class Shatters Records (Again)

For the second year in a row, UNH experienced a surge in first-year student enrollment. This fall, the University enrolled approximately 1,250 freshmen — a 14 percent increase over last year's record-breaking class.

Associate Vice President for Enrollment Management Kevin Phillips notes that the continued increase is due to a number of factors. New and expanded academic programs, a vast array of study-abroad options and internship opportunities, new state-of-the-art facilities and the return of Charger Football are just a few examples of the tremendous progress taking place on campus. New undergraduate degree programs added this fall include Theatre Arts, Digital Art and Design, and Museum Studies. As a result of these advances, the University's reputation for excellence and innovation is increasingly being recognized throughout the state, the nation and around the globe.

Phillips also attributes the increase to a substantial focus on recruitment using social media such as Facebook, Twitter,

YouTube and a new online 360-degree virtual campus tour. The result, he says, is a nearly 100 percent boost in campus visits. "With both campus and online visits, students and parents appreciate the solid connections they make with faculty members and staff," he said. "And once they are here and get a view of the facilities, they see for themselves that UNH is a really 'hot' school."

University Dedicates First 'Green' Building

The University officially dedicated its first 'green' building September 25, the new 402-bed Soundview Residence Hall. The $43 million, five-story building offers spectacular views of the Long Island Sound and the City of New Haven.

Soundview is expected to receive a gold certification for Leadership in Energy Efficient Design (LEED), the nationally acknowledged benchmark for green building practices. The certification reflects the University's commitment to sustainable architectural practices. Soundview artfully combines modern amenities with environmental awareness. Energy-efficient lighting, recycling rooms and a first floor exclusively devoted to sustainable living mark it as one of UNH's most ambitious capital initiatives to date.

The facility was completed as the University continues to experience record-breaking enrollment, with the largest freshman class in history arriving in late August. More than 5,200 students now attend UNH.

Breaking New Ground in Forensic Science

Institute Event a Tribute to Dr. Henry C. Lee

Once the speeches were done and the accolades delivered, the world's foremost forensic scientist hoisted a shovel September 25 inside a tent on the UNH campus amid thunderous applause.

Then Dr. Henry C. Lee, flanked by state dignitaries and University officials, dug into a pile of dirt to symbolically break ground for the new Henry C. Lee Institute of Forensic Science building. "The Henry C. Lee Institute has come a long way from when it started in 1975 to today," said Dr. Lee, a longtime UNH professor whose scientific acumen and creative genius provided the impetus for the Institute. "Back then, we had only a few students and a laboratory."

The Institute building is a structure that, as Board of Governors' chair Samuel S. Bergami, Jr. '85 E.M.B.A., said at the event, "will definitively establish the Institute and the University of New Haven as worldwide leaders in forensic science training and education." Located between Maxcy and Bartels halls, the Institute will house an interactive public-learning center, visual displays of historic cases, classrooms and laboratories. Also included will be a forensic crisis management command center featuring cutting-edge technology available for use by police agencies throughout Connecticut and the nation. The building is scheduled for completion in late 2010.

President Steven H. Kaplan was among several speakers who praised Dr. Lee's accomplishments to an audience of several hundred attending the groundbreaking. "I cannot think of another individual who has meant so much and contributed so significantly as Dr. Lee to this University's success," he said.

Bartels Fellow, a UNH Grad, was Mastermind behind MasterCard's "Priceless" Campaign

People from throughout the world quote the lines verbatim from MasterCard's "Priceless" television commercials, one of the longest running and most successful advertising campaigns in history. "Priceless" is now a part of pop culture, thanks to Lawrence Flanagan '80 B.S., Marketing.

30 in Dodds Theatre. He also held question-and-answer sessions with a Marketing class and a Financial Accounting class, lunched with student leaders, and spent time with faculty and deans. His advice to all: "Be fearless." As the chief marketing officer for MasterCard Worldwide, Flanagan was responsible for selecting the "Priceless" campaign from 35 options that were offered to the corporation when it was trying to revive itself in the 1990s. Flanagan saw the long-term potential for "Priceless." He pushed hard for it, even though another ad — sharper, cooler, wittier — had gained a strong footing. MasterCard listened to Flanagan, the brand was revived, and Flanagan was hailed a hero.

His secret: "I was just willing to say, 'I think this is the best thing to do,'" he said. "I'd rather do the right thing than the safe thing."

Injured Student Meets President at White House

While alternative medicine has been around for thousands of years, senior James Hilaire says he may have discovered one of the newest remedies of all — shaking hands with President Barack Obama. Hilaire is recovering from a season-ending injury he received in a soccer game last fall while serving as UNH goalkeeper. ABC News learned of his arduous battle to recover from the accident, and invited him to the White House for the taping of a television program on the future of the nation's healthcare system.

Although Hilaire didn't have the chance to ask President Obama his question regarding the lack of affordable health insurance for college students no longer covered by their parents' health insurance, he was able to meet the president. Hilaire says Obama shook his hand, smiled and gave him a wink. "That, to me, was the best cure of all," Hilaire said. "To think that millions of people in the United States will never have the chance to meet President Obama — but I did — is wonderful. I will carry that moment with me for the rest of my life."

SURF Students Present Research

Students who had engaged in summer research exhibited impressive findings September 25 in the lobby of Bartels Hall, the campus center. As part of UNH's Summer Undergraduate Research Fellowship program, students extracted fuel from algae, discovered the effects of compounds on Lyme Disease, and explored the relationship between economics and human trafficking, among several subjects.

13-Year-Old Is Youngest Student in UNH History

Though Maeda Hanafi '13 B.S., Computer Science, enjoys many of the same pastimes as her 13-year-old friends — from rollerblading to computer games — every morning as her friends head off to middle school, Maeda heads to classes at the University of New Haven.

The youngest student ever admitted to UNH, Maeda credits her parents, Imam and Anna, for much of her success. Three years after arriving in the United States from Jakarta, Indonesia, Imam graduated from UNH in 1995 with a degree in Computer Science. Anna, a trained economist, has been home-schooling Maeda and her three siblings, ages 5 to 11, since 2004.

Imam now operates Algosmith Computing, a local business that builds financial-system software for Wall Street companies. Maeda shares her father's love and aptitude for computerization. "We are delighted to have Maeda here," said Melissa Laskowski, associate director of Undergraduate Admissions. "She's very bright and very mature. I think she'll bring a fresh perspective to all her classes."

Humble Horseshoe Crab Belies Its Life-Saving Properties

Anyone who has ever taken a pill, been tested for meningitis or had a medical device implanted should probably thank the humble horseshoe crab for making it possible, according to Carmela Cuomo, Ph.D., associate professor and coordinator of UNH's Marine Biology Program. The 400-million-year-old invertebrate is well known for its presence on beaches around the globe, but less recognized for the bacteria-identifying compound contained in its bright-blue blood — limulus amoebocyte lysate (LAL) — which is in great demand by the biomedical and pharmaceutical industries.

The escalating need for LAL, which is used to identify the presence of bacteria and sells for $15,000 per quart, is one of the reasons why the Atlantic horseshoe crab species is particularly worth saving from decline, Cuomo says. After 10 years of research, Cuomo has developed the first protocols to successfully breed the Atlantic species in captivity, a feat that could prove a boon to the biomedical field and help protect the disc-shaped creature from extinction.

Honors

Psychology Professor Recognized as Rising Star

Stuart Sidle, director of UNH's Industrial-Organizational Psychology program, was named as one of 15 "Rising Stars" by Business New Haven. The news publication named Sidle as one of the region's business leaders of tomorrow for his research on workplace issues such as job stress, work satisfaction, employee surveys, change management and leadership development. He also has served as a consultant to dozens of organizational leaders and is frequently quoted in the local and national media.

Chin Named Athletics Administrator of the Year

Director of Athletics Deborah Chin has been named the National Association of Collegiate Women Athletics Administrators (NACWAA) Division II Administrator of the Year for 2009. The award is bestowed upon NACWAA members who have made significant contributions as administrators of intercollegiate athletics.

Students Take 1st Place for Dangers of Underage Drinking Video

UNH Communication students took first place in the second annual Wine & Spirits Wholesalers of Connecticut Public Service Announcement (PSA) Contest. The students created a 30-second PSA video to reinforce the dangers of underage drinking. The UNH video was chosen from 35 submitted by students from four Connecticut universities. Team members received a cash award in the amount of $2,500. To view the PSA go to: <http://www.newhaven.edu/prospective/31089/>.

Professor to Edit Psychology Journal

Psychology Professor Michael Morris has been appointed associate editor of the American Journal of Evaluation (AJE). His term begins in November. AJE is one of the leading journals in the field of psychological program evaluation.

Research Featured in New Journal of Chemistry

The research of two UNH professors and a recent graduate was published on the cover of the New Journal of Chemistry in its October edition. Chemistry Professor Pauline M. Schwartz's work with Dan Osipovitch '09 Chemistry, and Mechanical/Civil & Environmental Engineering Professor Carl Barratt was detailed in the article "Systems Chemistry and Parrondo's Paradox: Computational Models of Thermal Cycling."

State Recognizes Professor's Efforts

Political Science Professor Jim Dull, who directs UNH's legislative internships program, was awarded a certificate of recognition September 16 by Arthur Forst, the executive director of the Connecticut General Assembly's Commission on Legislative Staff Internships. Forst praised Dull's commitment to the internship program.

Dental Hygiene Student Wins Colgate Award

Third-year Dental Hygiene student Christine Saraceno '11 B.S., won a $5,000 scholarship from Colgate-Palmolive for the University's Dental Hygiene program with her essay "The value of a specific toothpaste recommendation for your patients' home-care regimen." Saraceno attended the inaugural meeting of the Colgate Oral Health Advisory Board in Manhattan October 21 through October 23 as one of two winners of the essay contest.

Books

What It Really Takes to Solve Crimes

UNH forensic scientist Dr. Henry C. Lee and forensic experts Elaine M. Pagliaro and Katherine Ramsland provide a realistic, in-depth picture of the education, skills, challenges and rewards involved in the field of forensic science in their new book "The Real World of a Forensic Scientist: Renowned Experts Reveal What it Takes to Solve Crimes." This compelling insider's guide begins with Dr. Lee's personal story and 40-year career to demonstrate how forensic science developed in the 20th century and came to be recognized by the courts and law enforcement as crucial in investigating crimes.

Overseas Chinese Influence on Trade Explored in New Book

A new book co-authored by a UNH Marketing professor explores the differing business strategies of overseas Chinese involved in trading in Southeast Asia compared to traditional Western-style decision making. George Haley, UNH professor of Marketing, his wife, Usha Haley, a former Asia Programs Fellow at Harvard's Kennedy School, and Tan Chin Tiong, deputy president of Singapore Management University, wrote "New Asian Emperors," in the hope of creating a better understanding of the strengths and weaknesses of both styles.

An Investment Guide for the Financially Savvy

McGraw-Hill recently published "Applied Value Investing" by Joseph P. Calandro, Jr. '01 E.M.B.A., of Morrisville, Pa. Calandro, the Enterprise Risk Manager for a global financial services firm in Philadelphia, is a former Finance professor at the University of Connecticut. His book is based on academic papers he published, which were rewritten in book form.

Tom Beebe Dan Kalmanson

New Senior Administrators

Tom Beebe has joined the University as the new associate vice president for Capital Projects. While working in the construction industry the past several years, Beebe had been involved with the University on a number of capital projects such as the David A. Beckerman Recreation Center, Soundview Residence Hall and the planning for the new Henry C. Lee Institute building and Bartels Hall expansion.

Dan Kalmanson is the new associate vice president for Communications and Public Affairs. A former television reporter and producer, Kalmanson has more than 20 years of experience in leading communications offices for public and private colleges including Florida International University, University of Miami and University of Richmond.

Presidential Fellows Provide Crucial Services to Community

Summer break had a different meaning for 10 UNH students this year. Instead of soaking up the sun at the beach, these students spent the summer as President's Public Service Fellows, bringing crucial, hands-on services to government and non-profit organizations in the greater New Haven area. Now in its 11th year, the President's Public Service

Fellowship Program, funded by a gift from the Henry E. and Nancy Horton Bartels Trust, is a highly selective program that allows students to give back to the community while gaining real-world experience.

This summer, the students worked on a wide range of community service projects including coordinating summer enrichment programs for underprivileged children, working with the Connecticut Food Bank, designing curricula for preschool children at the Connecticut Children's Museum, and helping the City of West Haven revise its emergency operations plan.

Artists Wield Brushes To Combat Lyme Disease

More than 15 professional artists created paintings throughout the seaside village of Stony Creek, Conn., July 12 as part of a benefit for the pioneering Lyme Disease research of Biology and Environmental Science Professor Eva Sapi. Their work was exhibited, then auctioned later that day. Thirty percent of the proceeds from the auction went to support the research of Sapi and the UNH Lyme Disease Research Group.

Tracking Coastal Ecological Changes

A group of UNH undergraduate and graduate students worked with Professor Roman Zajac of the Department of Biology and Environmental Science this past summer to identify and quantify changes occurring in salt marshes and other coastal systems, as rising sea levels and coastal development affect salt marsh ecosystems across the Eastern Seaboard. These trends can negatively affect the fishing industry, and may have an impact on coastal flooding.

This summer's work revealed some new and potentially significant insights into how animal and plant communities are responding to marsh change and the pace at which such changes are occurring.

UNH Dental Hygiene students cared for children's teeth in a Romanian orphanage.

Providing Dental Care in Romania, South Dakota

Faculty and students returned to Romania this summer to provide preventive care at an orphanage and in surrounding villages, as well as to improve their mastery of the language to better communicate with patients. Students also traveled to a Native American reservation in South Dakota to educate residents in dental hygiene and to provide care. Said Jessica Porter '09 A.S., "I am so grateful that I was able to have the opportunity to treat the members of the Sioux Indian Tribe and make a difference in their lives."

UNH Symposium Draws Global Participants

Senior military officials, diplomats and scholars from more than 15 countries tackled a variety of issues at the UNH-sponsored East Asia Symposium and Conference, now in its second year, in Beijing, China. Coordinated by Brett McCormick, director of Global Studies and Modern Languages at UNH, the weeklong symposium at China Foreign Affairs University increases the international visibility and reputation of the University.

Greg Melville, author of the best-selling book, "Greasy Rider: Two Dudes, One Fry-Oil-Powered Car, and a Cross-Country Search for a Greener Future," was the keynote speaker during Convocation August 23. "Greasy Rider" is the chronicle of two friends who drive cross country with the goal of not stopping at a gas pump.

The book was selected as UNH's 2009 Common Read selection, inspired by the University's "Go Green" sustainability campaign.

Undergraduate Student Presents Research at International Symposium

Criminal Justice student Stacey McMillin '10, who conducted a Summer Undergraduate research fellowship with Professor Mario Gaboury and Professor Chris Sedelmaier of the Henry C. Lee College of Criminal Justice and Forensic Sciences, presented her research findings at the 13th International Symposium on Victimology in Japan this summer. Her Royal Highness Princess Bajrakitiyabha Mahidol from Thailand delivered the keynote address, sharing her experiences working for underprivileged individuals within the Thai criminal justice system.

New Hero of Omaha Beach

Criminal Justice student Christopher DiStefano '10, is known as "the new hero of Omaha Beach" by his fellow classmates for his brave act of saving two drowning children in Normandy, France this summer.

While touring the historic beach during the UNH College of Arts and Sciences Summer Study Abroad Program, DiStefano came upon a French couple screaming frantically and pointing toward the ocean. Though he didn't understand French, he noticed a young boy struggling to keep his head above water. He immediately dove into the water and began swimming. Once he reached the boy, he discovered a second child completely submerged underwater, the young boy's sister. He helped both get back to shore and safely reunited with their grateful parents.

"I saw what was happening and knew I couldn't just stand there, doing nothing," said DiStefano, who hopes to eventually join a local police force. "I just needed to do it. It was quite an experience and it made the trip even more meaningful."

Hilaire is this year's recipient of the Ryan-Foster Scholarship.

This year, more than $285,000 was awarded from endowed scholarships to more than 140 deserving UNH students.

UNH Joins National Sustainability Association

The University has joined the Association for Sustainability in Higher Education (AASHE) to promote sustainability on campus. AASHE is an association of colleges and universities that work together to create a sustainable future by providing resources, professional development and a network of support to enable higher education to lead the sustainability transformation.

"The University of New Haven's membership in the association marks our deepening commitment to sustainability," said Julia Parker, former vice president for Facilities. Some of UNH's most recent green initiatives include biodiesel research using algae from the Long Island Sound and the new Global Solutions for Sustainability course introduced this fall as part of the University's core curriculum.

Freshmen Travel Abroad For Study Opportunities

The Freshman Study Abroad program grew significantly this year, adding a new program on the Cultural Experiences Abroad campus in the heart of Florence, Italy, in addition to the University's existing program at Roehampton University in London.

Sports Roundup

Women's Basketball Preview

After posting a 16-13 overall record and a 10-12 conference record in its inaugural Northeast-10 Conference season, the UNH women's basketball team hopes to improve in 2009-10. The team returns three starters and eight letter winners this season, including point guard Helin Marte, '10, B.S., Management of Sports Industries. Marte is expected to be the Chargers' leader this season, after scoring 7.4 points per game and handing out 5.2 assists per game last season. Also returning this season is Dominique Stellmacher '11 B.S., Management of Sports Industries, and Alysia Saunders '10 B.S., Biology. Nikki Carroll '12 B.S., Communication is also expected to make an impact for the women this season.

The Chargers tipped off the 2009-2010 season at home in a non-conference game against Dominican College at 2 p.m. November 15. The following week, UNH opened its road and NE-10 schedules with a game at American International November 18. Prior to winter break, the Chargers travels to Florida for two out-of-region games against Lynn University and Nova Southeastern University on December 20 and 22, respectively. The Chargers travel to Southern Connecticut State on January 2, opening the 2010 half of their schedule. On January 16, the Chargers travel to take on NE-10 pre-season favorite Stonehill College. Senior Day will take place for the team's final home game February 20 against Pace University. The regular season concludes February 24 at Adelphi, while the NE-10 tournament begins February 28.

Darryl Greene '10 B.S., shows off his skills.

Men's Basketball Preview

After posting an 8-19 record in their first Northeast-10 Conference season, the New Haven men's basketball team looks to improve in 2009-10. With a nucleus of four returning starters and another three returning letter winners, the Chargers made an immediate impact when they open the 2009-10 regular season November 15. The men traveled to Molloy College for a non-conference matchup that day, then began their NE-10 schedule November 18. UNH opened its home schedule November 24 against Assumption College. Other schedule highlights in 2009 include a holiday tournament at Adelphi University December 29 and 30.

The Chargers open the 2010 portion of their schedule at cross-town rival Southern Connecticut State January 2. UNH then hosts the Owls at the Charger Gymnasium February 6. Senior Day will take place February 20 when the Chargers host Pace University in their final home game of the season.

The NE-10 men's basketball tournament begins with seeds five through 12 playing February 27. Leading the way this season will be Cassius Chaney '10 B.S., Management of Sports Industries, Darryl Greene '10 B.S., Information Technology, and Kelvin Jackson '10 B.S., Criminal Justice. Chaney led the team last season with 18.8 points per game, while adding a team-high 7.4 rebounds per game. Greene, who suffered a season-ending injury midway through last season, will see a majority of his time at the point guard position this season. In 13 games last season, Greene averaged 11.8 points and 2.5 assists per game. A very athletic center, Jackson added 10 points and 6.4 rebounds per game last year.

Football Charges Back

Ralph F. DellaCamera Stadium
Hails a Victorious Homecoming

Homecoming is typically an annual event that welcomes alumni back to campus. This year's Homecoming at the University of New Haven, however, was far more significant. UNH's Homecoming hailed the return of the Charger football program after a five-year absence. It celebrated the dedication of the new Ralph F. DellaCamera Stadium, featuring a visually stunning blue and gold sprint turf field, and it reminded students, alumni, faculty, staff and friends of a storied football past that portends an equally storied future.

Ralph F. DellaCamera, Jr. '75 B.S., Marketing, a member of the UNH Board of Governors, made the transformational gift to install the new field. He stood in front of the 3,500 fans gathered at the stadium for the Homecoming match against Stonehill College on September 26, and talked about his path to success.

"It isn't about how hard you get hit, it's about how hard you can get hit and keep moving forward," said DellaCamera, the CIO and managing member of DellaCamera Capital Management LLC in Manhattan. He then dedicated the field to his father, Ralph F. DellaCamera, "for teaching and instilling in me the belief that I should never give up and that I should believe in myself."

The return of Charger football did not come easily. President Steven H. Kaplan and Director of Athletics Deborah Chin worked for years to get UNH's team accepted into the highly competitive Northeast-10 Conference. The University hired a new head football coach and recruited an entire squad of players from scratch.

With just a year to field a team, Coach Pete Rossomando and his staff found talent in

25 Years Later, Familiar Voices Echo Over the Airwaves

As Charger football made its return to the gridiron this season, so did the longest-running play-by-play team in UNH history.

numerous places. Quarterback Ryan Osiecki '12 B.S., Criminal Justice, a 2008 freshman walk-on at the University of Louisville whose father, Sandy Osiecki, was a backup quarterback for the Kansas City Chiefs, transferred to UNH in January. Wide receiver Sharieff Hall transferred from Bethune-Cookman University in Daytona Beach, Fla.

The stadium was originally named for Robert B. Dodds, a now-deceased UNH Board member and University benefactor. His widow, Isabella Dodds, who has continued in her husband's tradition of supporting UNH, graciously agreed to the stadium's renaming. At the event, President Kaplan thanked Mrs. Dodds, then continued, "Football had a long and proud history at UNH. It belonged here, and it needed to come back."

It returned with a vengeance that day. With just 21 seconds left in the game, Osiecki completed a pass to Hall for the winning touchdown against Stonehill. Cheering from the sidelines was 44-year-old reserve nose guard Wayne Parks '12 B.S., Arson Investigation, a Fairfield firefighter with three children, two of whom are in college. Parks' age has brought him and the University plenty of publicity, from The New York Times to ESPN. He also has become a cause célèbre for the middle-aged athlete.

"What I like," the Times quoted Parks as saying, "is when people say you can't do something, because I like to prove them wrong. The second thing is, I really like the people who have said, 'Wow, you've really inspired me.'" games for WNHU 88.7 FM from 1980 through 1984, are reprising their roles for the UNH radio station more than two decades later.

"Our hair is thinner, our waistlines are thicker, we're both married with kids, and the equipment is more sophisticated," Mortali '84 B.S., Communication. "Other than that, very little has changed. We still love football."

A native of North Haven, Mortali went on to become a six-time Emmy Award-winning producer for ESPN, headquartered in Bristol, Conn. His most recent documentary, "Triumph and Tragedy: The 'Ray Mancini Story,'" which premiered on ESPN Classic in November 2007, won the 2008 CableFAX Program Award for Best Show: Sports, and also was nominated for a Sports Emmy in the Outstanding Documentary category. Ryan also grew up in North Haven, worked for WTNH-Channel 8 and Comcast Cable, and is now a buyer for Sikorsky Aircraft in Stratford.

"Our friendship has grown since our days as students," Mortali said, "so the on-air rapport is as good, if not better, than it was when we last teamed up in 1984."

One last thing, he says.

"It's great to have Charger football back."

A First Season Ends Well; On to Next Year

In their first season since 2003, the Chargers finished with a 5-5 overall record, including a 4-4 record in the Northeast-10 Conference. The New Haven Register quoted quarterback Ryan Osiecki '12 B.S., Criminal Justice, as saying, "Most people had us last in the NE-10. We went 5-5, so I think it was a good season overall. We have a lot of things to work on, and we're only going to get better."

WNHU, Already a Top Station, Gets a Makeover

Student Opportunities, Desire for New Programming Prompt Changes

The University's campus radio station, WNHU 88.7 FM (www.wnhu.net), long regarded as one of the top college stations in the state, has embraced a new philosophy.

Renowned for its eclectic programming, the station dramatically rescheduled programming in September and increased student opportunities, in the hopes that the audience will increase as well. The station also added two Internet streams and a professional automation system to replace outdated technology.

"The changes at the radio station — such as expanded student programming and a more student-friendly environment — have been great," said Mia Becker '10, Music Industry and Finance. "Other students are responding really well to it too."

In 2008, WNHU moved from being simply a student activity to an academic arm of UNH's Department of Communication, Film and Theatre. That same year, the station developed a website offering streaming audio, play lists and expanded station information including popular DJ bios and photos. After a national search, WNHU also hired a professional general manager.

"The change is noticeable," said Professor Steve Raucher, chair of the UNH Department of Communication, Film and Theatre. More than two dozen students either passed their training and qualifying exam or are waiting to hear. Seven students are training with two UNH alumni who are broadcasting Charger Football games (see story, page 15). Another 25 students helped the general manager plan and coordinate the station's first sponsored event, a "Beatlemania Again" concert.

"The station sounds better, offers three times the broadcasting opportunities for students and community volunteers, provides a more professional atmosphere for students, offers a better academic environment for students, and is a much nicer place to work," Raucher said.

The College of Business

M.B.A. Program Brings Education to the Workplace

Like room service, the employees at Pitney Bowes are having their education delivered to them.

On Monday and Wednesday evenings, employees gather in the Discovery Room in Building No. 27 at the Pitney Bowes facility in Shelton to work toward their master's degrees through a cohort program offered through the College of Business. Cohort programs allow classes to move seamlessly as a unit through the coursework. There are other advantages as well.

"Two nights a week, I literally walk downstairs from my office and I'm in the class," says Marisa Scott, the manager of IT Strategic Sourcing at Pitney Bowes. "And if we stay with the program through to the end, 100 percent of the tuition is reimbursable by the company. Financially, it makes sense and it's very convenient."

The class will complete the program in the spring of 2012, and Scott, who has been trying to return to school for many years to earn her master's degree, will finally be able to cross that achievement off her list.

UNH adjunct instructor Jim Mohs, who teaches in the cohort program, says he had some initial reservations about the in-house approach, which leads to a fast-paced, accelerated M.B.A. But his experience at Pitney Bowes has alleviated his concerns. "I find this cohort to be remarkable,"

Mohs said. "There is a chemistry among the class members, a pure team learning concept where everyone participates."

And everyone benefits. "Offering an M.B.A. in-house is a tremendous convenience for the students," says Linda Carlone, who directs the program for UNH. "They don't need to get into their cars and travel anywhere. In some work environments, employees may return to their desk to get some more work done."

The Henry C. Lee College of Criminal Justice and Forensic Sciences

Two New Ph.D. Programs Highlight UNH Strengths in Criminal Justice, Forensics

With global terrorism and the demand for tighter homeland security increasing, the University has created two new Ph.D. programs, one in Criminal Justice, the other in Forensic Medicine and Sciences, to begin in 2010.

The Criminal Justice Ph.D. program is expected to quickly attract both full-time traditional graduate students and part-time professionals. "The UNH Criminal Justice Ph.D. will provide the nation and state of Connecticut with doctoral-level education that will benefit other institutions of higher learning and the numerous agencies concerned with criminal justice, homeland security, and public-safety operations," says Dean Richard Ward, who will coordinate the program.

The Forensic Medicine and Sciences Ph.D. program is a joint effort between UNH and the University of Verona in Italy, and is believed to be the first international program of its kind. It calls for UNH students to spend at least seven months in Verona, and UNIVR students to spend seven months at UNH. "We are very excited about this," says Dr. Franco Tagliaro, a professor and director of UNIVR's Institute of Forensic Medicine. He and fellow faculty member Dr. Federica Bortolotti visited UNH recently, bringing along an electropherograph, an instrument that will be used to teach students forensic analysis.

The program will bridge the gap between forensic medicine and traditional forensic science, says UNH Professor Timothy Palmbach, director and chairman of the Forensic Science Department. "In the United States, with territories and turfs and the separation between the fields, this type of collaboration is unheard of but unbelievably valuable," Palmbach says. "You are taking everything medicine has to offer and everything forensic science has to offer and putting it together to solve crimes."

Competing on a Drop of Gasoline and High Hopes

Mechanical Engineering Students Enter Supermileage Competition

Just about everyone who owns a car wants better gas mileage. The truly committed buy hybrids or convert their cars to run on recycled vegetable oil, but the UNH chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers did them one better: Chapter members built their own high-mileage vehicle, and entered it in their very first race.

SAE, a society that advances mobility engineering, sponsors a Supermileage Competition each year. This year, 45 teams from across the nation signed up for the race, although just 30 actually made it to Marshall, Michigan, with the hopes of competing. And before even putting a vehicle on the track, teams needed to pass a technical inspection. By the time the race began, just 23 teams qualified for competition, with UNH among them.

"This alone, we learned, was a tremendous accomplishment," said UNH Chapter President Michael Ingmanson '10, Mechanical Engineering. "Most first-year teams never complete technical inspection, let alone compete in the race." Club member and driver Tom Ruggieri '10, Mechanical Engineering, pushed the car to its limits, completing five laps before the drive chain tore apart. A quick repair and four laps later, the chain severed again, and the race was over. But the team was elated: the vehicle's race mileage was 240 miles per gallon, 14 times the fuel efficiency of the average U.S. automobile.

"One of the biggest benefits to attending the competition was the wealth of inspiration and knowledge we found in other teams' designs and ideas," Ingmanson said. "We were able to come away with pages of ideas and plans for improving our designs and producing a better car next year."

A Message from the Alumni Association President

Every year, we on the Alumni Association Board make an effort to involve you in the life of the University. This year, we are hoping you consider coming to the Alumni Scholarship Ball, whose theme is 'Give Locally, Impact Globally.' Monies raised from the Scholarship Ball — including the Alumni Association Scholarship — help students pay for college. Once they graduate, they have an impact throughout the globe, from West Haven to Texas to Thailand. See the ad on the back cover of this magazine; the Ball is always a beautiful event and a great time. Consider attending this year.

I also want to mention the Golden Charger honorary degree ceremony held in June, which is featured in this magazine. The University presented honorary bachelor's degrees to a number of alumni in a very moving ceremony that, for many, was a highlight of their lives.

Education, combined with experience, is what the University of New Haven does so well, and UNH wanted to recognize this accomplishment for these graduates. It definitely had an impact on them.

Come back to campus to see the many incredible changes here, come to the Scholarship Ball, and become involved again with the University. That way, you can have an impact too.

Football Alumni Gather For a Spirited Reunion

President Steven H. Kaplan visited with more than 50 football alumni and their guests at a pre-game tailgate reception September 19 to celebrate UNH's first football home game in five years. Several alumni who attended were members of the University's first football team from 1973, when the team was a part of Division III. UNH became a Division II team in 1982.

"When I went to school at UNH, football was a big part of my life, and the guys I played with were a big part of my extended family," said Dave Haubner '86 B.S., Business Administration, who helped gather alumni for the event. "The best way to thank the University was to show our support, especially for how grateful we are that football is back."

UNH's Miami Alumni Weekend December 4 through December 6, which included a Miami Dolphins game and a tour of Land Shark Stadium, also brought together football alumni, who continued to reminisce about the September 19 reunion. "People are still talking about it," Haubner said. "They can't say enough about how great the stadium looks, how great the campus looks. I want to thank President Kaplan, the athletic directors and everyone else who made this possible."

Worth Waiting For: 48 RECEIVE HONORARY BACHELOR'S DEGREES

President Steven H. Kaplan awarded honorary bachelor's degrees to 48 UNH alumni who graduated 50 or more years ago with associate's degrees from the former New Haven College at the 12th Annual Golden Charger Luncheon and Commencement Celebration in June. In addition, 35 alumni were inducted into the Order of the Golden Chargers.

In an emotional ceremony held on the anniversary of D-Day, marking the start of the Allied invasion of Normandy during World War II, dozens of veterans were applauded and recognized for their military service. All of those honored had been able to earn their associate's degrees, but were unable for a variety of reasons to return to college to earn their bachelor's degrees. One honorary bachelor's degree recipient said of the ceremony, "This was one of the nicest things to happen to me in my lifetime."

For weeks afterward, President Kaplan received letters of thanks and reminiscence from bachelor's degree recipients and their family members. The son of one recipient wrote, "For someone like my father — quiet, unassuming — this was certainly one of the highlights of his life."

Third Annual Alumni Weekend

It was a time to reconnect with fellow University of New Haven alumni, celebrate school spirit and participate in activities with friends and family. UNH's Third Annual Alumni Weekend, held June 5 through June 7, offered three days filled with festivities including a barbecue, fireworks and several receptions. The weekend kicked off Friday at Lilly's Pad at Toad's Place in New Haven.

Other events included a thank-you reception given by President Steven H. Kaplan for members of the Loyal Engaged Annual Donor (LEAD) Society for their continued support and commitment to the University, a gathering of alumni of the E.M.B.A. program for conversation, cocktails and appetizers in the German Club, and a barbecue Saturday for all alumni, who then were dazzled by an awe-inspiring display of fireworks. The weekend concluded Sunday with brunch and campus tours.

ALUMNI SPOTLIGHT

Saving the Earth by Growing a New Marketplace

The resume of UNH Board of Governors member Thomas Lewis, Jr. '74 B.S., Business Administration, '76 M.S., Computer and Information Science, testifies to his pursuit of a varied career. With a degree from the prestigious Culinary Institute of America, Lewis cooked his way through the University of New Haven to pay for his schooling, working at local restaurants, country clubs and hotels. After graduating, he served as an executive at numerous corporations, was director of Technology for the Executive Office of the Reagan administration — winning the Distinguished Service Award of the Office of Administration — and most recently was Executive-in-Residence at the Johns Hopkins University Carey Business School, where he designed and taught the environmental finance M.B.A. program. He is an accomplished artist whose grandfather, Giovanni Scarinci, was a favored portraitist for numerous federal judges.

His most recent venture, however, might be his biggest yet. He is the new CEO of Green Exchange, a consortium of leading financial and environmental companies including Goldman Sachs, Credit Suisse and J.P. Morgan, seeking a share of the $300 billion global emissions market. Lewis will lead the consortium's global growth through the creation of a financial exchange for trading environmental commodities such as carbon offsets and Renewable Energy Certificates. He also will provide strategic direction for development of products to serve these emerging markets.

"It's a very large endeavor," says Lewis, who was honored with the University's Distinguished Alumni award in 1994, is the recipient of an honorary doctorate in Business Administration, and is chairman of the Henry C. Lee Institute of Forensic Science. "There are not a lot of individuals in the general business sector who understand the magnitude of this. We expect to be the largest environmental trading platform in the world."

The global emissions market is expected to grow to about $3 trillion to $5 trillion in the next three to five years, making it the largest new financial market for the foreseeable future. "I'm inspired,"

"We expect to be the largest environmental trading platform in the world."

he says. "I find that this is something that not only has economic value, but I believe it has a noble purpose. I am committed to this because I believe in the premise that in order for environmental policy to be successful, you have to engage the capital markets. Being able to link the environmental purpose and the creation of capital is something that will help to improve the world."

A Life Of Work, Now A Time For Play

William L. Bucknall, Jr. '65 B.S., Business Administration, rose to become one of the top human resources professionals in the nation, retiring in 2008 as senior vice president of United Technologies Corp. His sense of industry, his intelligence and his wizardry with time management, however, weren't slowing down. He had simply decided to focus on more important matters.

With two daughters and four grandchildren, and family vacations in Martha's Vineyard in the summer and Barbados in the winter, along with family ski trips to Vermont, one might think he spends all his time with his family. Certainly, he dotes on his daughters, and particularly on his grandchildren. "It is thrilling to watch each child grow and develop into their own unique personality," he says. "It is a priceless experience because of the joy they bring to my life, and because I am able to give them back to their mothers at the end of the day."

Then he is off on far-flung journeys, to the South of France, traveling from Menerbes, the setting for Peter Mayle's best-selling book, "A Year in Provence," to Arles, where

Bill Bucknall at the Segesta Temple, an ancient Doric temple in Sicily

Vincent Van Gogh found the inspiration for many of his most famed paintings. He also has escaped to England — London, Cambridge and the Cotswolds — to Paris, Amsterdam, Rome, and most recently, Sicily, where he toured Catania, Taormina, Syracuse, Agrigento and Palermo.

These days, he has far more time to pursue one of his favorite passions, reading, and regularly attends performances at the Metropolitan Opera and on Broadway. He also remains active on the University's Board of Governors. Retirement, and his expansive definition of it, has brought him a certain satisfaction. "George Herbert, the English clergyman and poet, said 'Living well is the best revenge,'" Bucknall says. "I completely agree with him."

Seton Hall's New Assistant Coach Polished Her Skills at UNH

Former UNH women's basketball standout Ty Grace '99 B.S., Management of Sports Industries, is now an assistant coach for women's basketball at Seton Hall University. Grace, most recently an assistant coach at West Point, also served as head coach at Ramapo College in New Jersey, as an assistant at Fairleigh Dickinson, also in New Jersey, and as a graduate assistant coach at the University of Hartford. Grace has a master's in Administrative Science from Fairleigh Dickinson. "She has tremendous experience," said Seton Hall Head Coach Phyllis Mangina. "Her energy and enthusiasm will greatly benefit everyone in our program."

Wilson Lauture '00 M.B.A., of Stamford, who won notoriety when he paraded in a business suit through numerous Connecticut towns earlier this year holding a sandwich board listing his qualifications for a job and his status as an unemployed accountant, has found a job. The story was seen by an executive at the Manhattan accounting firm Buchbinder, Tunick & Co. The firm hired Lauture in September.

Harwinton resident Jason Emery '02 B.S., Fire Science, has been with the Waterbury Fire Department for 15 years and is a lieutenant with its Rescue/Hazmat Company. Emery is the founder of Emergency Training Solutions, LLC, and is the lead PowerPoint designer for the Fire Engineering Handbook for Firefighter I and II.

A Second Chance at Success

Sylvia Morgan '83 B.S., Financial Accounting, arrived in Connecticut as an unwed teen mother with an infant son and few skills. She might have ended up a statistic but for one thing: a college education.

"I wanted my baby to have the best, and the only jobs I could find were domestic work," she said recently, more than three decades after she left home in Virginia and moved to Connecticut with a friend. "It became clear to me that I needed more education."

She remembered happy moments poring over numbers with her father when she was small, and she decided to pursue math. She obtained her GED, attended Naugatuck Valley Community College, and was recommended for a scholarship to UNH.

After graduating, Morgan became a CPA, and for more than 25 years has been an associate financial examiner in the Securities Division of the Connecticut Department of Banking, the state equivalent to the federal Securities and Exchange Commission.

"Having access to education and training turned my life around," said Morgan, who prides herself on giving annually to UNH. "Without the scholarships and financial aid, there's no way I could have done it. I sincerely believe that anyone who wants to go back to school deserves a chance."

New Britain resident Timothy R. Cyr '05 B.S., Criminal Justice, has joined the New Britain Fire Department as a firefighter.

The Westport Police Department recently promoted Jillian L. Cabana '06 B.S., Criminal Justice, of Westport, to detective. Cabana joined the department in May 2006.

Stratford resident Debra "Debi" Hirth '06 B.S., Criminal Justice, has recently accepted a position as a revenue officer with the Internal Revenue Service in Bridgeport.

Milford resident Brian R. Peloso '06 B.S., Criminal Justice, '08 M.S., Criminal Justice, has been acknowledged by the Milford Mirror for his service in the U.S. Navy from December 1996 to April 2002, where he was deployed three times to the Persian Gulf aboard the USS Chosin.

Aaron W. Luke '07 B.A., Political Science, has joined The Boys and Girls Club of Chattanooga, Tenn., as program manager. Luke, a Chattanooga resident, was formerly employed by the Hamilton County Department of Education.

Joel M. Sachs '07 M.S., Taxation, principal of Konowitz, Kahn, & Co., P.C., has been elected to the board of directors of Recovered Medical Equipment for the Developing World (REMEDY),

A Love Story

The New York Times in July featured the story of the courtship of Timothy Maciejak '08 M.S., Education, a math teacher at St. Xavier High School in Louisville, Ky., and Kelly Morgan, telling of how the couple became acquainted as youngsters vacationing in Nantucket. They remained friends, and reunited after college graduation for a dinner in Manhattan that included Ms. Morgan's mother, Sarah Morgan. Once the evening was over, the mother said to the daughter, "What would you do if Tim told you he was going to marry someone else? He's perfect."

Three months later, while the couple were visiting together at Maciejak's home in Madison, Conn., they realized they were in love. They were married July 18 in Louisville, just a few months after Sarah Morgan passed away from leukemia. Said the new Mrs. Maciejak of her mother's death, "Being an only child, I really leaned on Tim. He got me through the most challenging and emotional time of my life."

Veteran Female Officer Rises to Chief

Karen Krasicky '78 B.S., Criminal Justice, is one of just three women to lead a police department in Connecticut. The Bristol (Conn.) Press published a story in June on Krasicky, who spent 26 years with the Bridgeport Police Department before accepting the police chief's job in Plymouth. She has held the job for four years, garnering respect for her commitment to community policing and her volunteerism in town. Said Krasicky, "I plan to stay in Plymouth for a long time. I have a great department. Everyone pitches in."

Retired Pilot Making a Difference on the Ground

During a 23-year career as an American Airlines pilot, preceded by stints as a U.S. Air Force pilot and organic farmer, Peter Smith '70 B.S., Business Administration, prided himself on taking meaningful vacations. He restored stone work on castles in southern France, volunteered with a group of airline employees who brought aid to citizens throughout the globe, and contributed supplies and built furnishings for schoolrooms in a Himalayan mountain village.

"I realized how much of a difference one person can make," Smith says. Retiring in 2008, he joined the Peace Corps, relocating to the Kingdom of Tonga, where he works for the Department of Civil Aviation, the Tongan equivalent of the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration (except that the FAA has almost 50,000 employees, and his department has four).

"The good news for retired people looking for a lifestyle change is that the Peace Corps has recently put a lot of emphasis on older people with life skills," he says. Cold showers, outdoor toilets and neighbors who wear grass mats for clothing are all part of the experience. "The Peace Corps isn't for everyone," he says. "But it certainly has something to offer anyone willing to accept the challenge of living outside their comfort zone." To learn more about the foundation Smith established to help rural Nepali schools, visit www.openyourhands.org.

IN MEMORIAM

Remembering Professor Smith

Professor Emeritus and former administrator Warren J. Smith died July 20 in Florida. Well-known for his gregarious nature and creative spirit, Professor Smith was an esteemed educator at UNH for 35 years until his retirement in 1997. He was chair of the Department of General Management, dean of the School of Business Administration, founder and acting dean of the School of Hotel, Restaurant and Tourism, founder and chair of the Faculty Senate, and co-author of the University's first Faculty Constitution. He taught Management Science, Economics and Quantitative Analysis in an always approachable way. He also helped small business owners with finance and strategic planning as a consultant for the Small Business Administration, and was an avid writer, appearing frequently in Florida's regional newspapers long after he had officially retired.

As one small example of his tenacity and perseverance, he took up running at 54, ran his first marathon at 55, and ran the Boston Marathon in four hours, at age 64.

He leaves his wife Jean (Conlon) Smith, and two daughters, Deborah J. Chevie of Norfolk and Valerie A. Smith of Watertown.

2008-2009 ANNUAL REPORT OF GIVING

A Letter from the Chairman of the Advancement and Development Committee of the UNH Board of Governors

I was unsure of myself as a student until I reached the University of New Haven. Something about this institution — the guidance, the optimism, the belief that all students possess untapped levels of promise — invigorated me and spurred me to work. It is a story I hear often, and a particular strength of the University's. UNH gives its students a clear, clean compass to enable them to find the way.

But to where?

Success means different things to different people. For many, it means the ability to give to others. When speaking about giving, former Chrysler chairman Lee Iacocca once said, "I was fortunate to get a scholarship when I went to Lehigh University and Princeton. They were both wonderful schools. Somebody was kind enough to spend their money to educate people that they would never get to know. That's what I think philanthropy is about."

He's right, of course. Giving isn't about getting a pat on the back or even your name in an Honor Roll of Donors. It's about the quiet satisfaction that comes from knowing that in giving to a student who may never meet you in person, you could be growing the next philanthropist who will help the next student in need. Giving to education has a way of multiplying its blessings, and in this holiday season, that's a pretty good gift indeed.

Rob Lee '78 B.S., Mechanical Engineering

The following list recognizes all gifts and matching gifts received by the University between July 1, 2008 and June 30, 2009. Extreme care has been given to the preparation of this report. Please review your name and giving information. If you notice errors, please contact the Office of Advancement at 203-932-7269 or by email at alender@newhaven.edu so that we may correct our records. Thank you.

FISCAL YEAR 2009

FUNDRAISING SUCCESS

Gifts and grants to the University reached a new record of $7.85 million in FY2009, up 13% over the prior year. Despite the global economic downturn, the number of alumni donors grew by 20%, and the number of all donors increased by 22% over the prior year. We are grateful to our contributors who continue to support our students and faculty through these challenging times.

Giving MATTERS

JAMES HILAIRE '10, RECIPIENT: RYAN-FOSTER SCHOLARSHIP

Major: Criminal Justice

Involvement: Goalie, UNH Soccer; founder, Big Time Recovery Organization, non-profit providing temporary physical and emotional support through funding, counseling and other means to financially needy Connecticut youths who have suffered traumatic sports-related injuries.

This fall, the Fairfield County Sports Commission named James as the recipient of one of its most prestigious honors, the Chelsea Cohen Courage Award. The award recognizes a person in the sports community who has demonstrated inspirational strength in overcoming life-altering obstacles.

Hope for the future: My hope for the future is to find a job in my chosen career so I am able to pay my loans and move on with my life and with helping others.

Why he is grateful: I am grateful to be alive and to have my parents and people around me who care. I can't say "thank you" enough.

The University of New Haven was playing against Merrimack College last fall when I ran toward a player who was dribbling the ball toward my goal. I dove for the ball, trying to make a save – something I had done a thousand times before – but this time, it was different. This time, the player's knee collided with my jaw with so much force, it ruptured a vein in my brain, so all I remember is waking up in the hospital. The night of the accident, my doctors told my coaches that I would not make it – but I am here now. Soon, I will be able to tell people that I graduated from the University of New Haven. I will have a degree from a great school. And I will have that degree because scholarships and financial aid helped me get it. Thank you very much.

MATTERS

CHRISTOPHER RINCK '10
RECIPIENT: THE ALVINE LEGACY ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP

Major: Investigation

Involvement: USGA President; Captain, UNH Ice Hockey Team; UNH Lacrosse Team; UNH Soccer Club Admissions Team (A-team); Bixler Hall resident assistant

Hope for the future: To pursue a career in Fire Service, Emergency Management or a related field.

Why he is grateful: This scholarship has allowed me to attend this wonderful University of New Haven, which has molded me into a person I never knew I could be, and I have been involved in activities I never dreamed I would be part of. I have met some of my best friends at UNH, received an excellent education and held leadership positions. The generous donation from the Alvine family made all this possible for me. Thank you.

WHY Give?

GAIL L. BREKKE, MEMBER, UNH BOARD OF GOVERNORS

A former vice president with LIN Television, based in New Haven and nationally headquartered in Providence, R.I., Gail also served in leadership positions at KXAN NBC 36 in Austin, KFTN-TV Fox 29 in Minneapolis/Saint Paul, WGBO-TV in Chicago, WNOL-TV in New Orleans and KRBK-TV in Sacramento. She also was the president and owner of Black Diamond Communications, Inc. in Minneapolis.

She created the Geraldine Hughes Brekke and Gail L. Brekke Endowed Scholarship at UNH this year, in honor of her mother, Geraldine, to fulfill her wish to create a collegiate award for "Gerry's Dream." Geraldine was unable to afford a college education for herself, and this scholarship will enable other women to achieve the dream that eluded her.

What Motivates:

Charitable giving is always a deeply personal experience, such as doing a charity walk for a friend with Lupus, accommodating a professional colleague asking for volunteer time and dollars on a cause we share, memorializing a departed friend or family member, and believing and supporting the value of local arts organizations and how they educate youth.

What Matters:

My present priorities are education and health initiatives.

Why She Helps:

I endowed a scholarship at UNH because this is my community now, even though it is a great distance from where I grew up on the prairies of the Midwest. Without the sacrifices of my parents back then, a college education would never have been possible for me. Their long hours and willingness to work more than one job while raising four children were something to be respected and memorialized in a way that can 'give back' in the same selfless manner that they did. I was always proud of my mother and her spirit, and I want a great deal to her to speak of her daughter, the first college graduate in our family. To be part of enabling that process for another family is repaying a debt.

Giving MATTERS

TARA COPPOLA '12, RECIPIENT: H. PEARCE FAMILY & FRIENDS ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP

Double major: Nutrition and Dietetics, Biology/Pre-med

Involvement: Volunteer with Bright Bodies/Smart Moves, a weight management program for children at the Celentano School in New Haven. The program focuses on self-esteem building, exercise, nutrition education and family support to help children succeed.

Hope for the future: To get my Registered Dietitian license, then proceed to medical school. I have big aspirations for myself and am willing to do all the hard work necessary to make them happen.

Why she is grateful: Here at UNH, I have found mentors who are genuinely concerned about my future, and supportive people who push me to strive for more each day. I have attended other colleges and universities, and not one of them has even come close to offering the nurturing and encouraging atmosphere I have found at UNH. I am thankful every day that I am able to attend UNH — thank you! — and to be surrounded by people who care for my future. I now see my potential, and I am most proud and thankful for my newfound belief in myself.

WHY Give?

DONNA AND DENNIS MCGOUGH M.A. '81, INDUSTRIAL/ORGANIZATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY

Dennis is a former vice president of Human Resources, Olin Corp., and a 27-year member of the UNH faculty.

Donna is a veteran teacher and library media specialist, having taught in both the Connecticut and Missouri school systems.

The McGoughs created the McGough Family Endowed Scholarship at UNH this year.

What Motivates:

"To whom much has been given, much is required" (Luke 12:48). We try to be good stewards of the resources that have been entrusted to us.

Dennis: Many years ago, I was asked to write a guest editorial in the Stamford Advocate regarding homelessness. I was serving on the board for the Shelter for the Homeless, Inc. in Stamford. I used this well-known idea as the basis for my editorial: Give someone a fish and you feed them for a day, teach them how to fish... My firm belief is that this isn't an either/or situation. Sometimes you must do both, giving someone fish so that they can survive while they are learning to fish.

Why They Help:

Donna: Dennis and I were volunteers at the Monroe (Conn.) EMS, and we served on the administrative board for the service. I was a teacher for 30 years, in the most rewarding profession possible. There is nothing more exciting than helping students understand the power they have over their own success. Dennis and I both believe it is important to serve our community.

Dennis: UNH does a terrific job in the higher education arena. In our own small way, we support that effort through annual giving and scholarships. We believe in the UNH mission. Donna and I also received help from our parents and each received some scholarship support. We are privileged to pass it forward by providing scholarship support. If you can help, you must help. If not me, who? If not now, when?

What Matters:

Service to God through family and community

Dennis: My personal motto:

- Love God.
- Love your family.
- Give generously to others.
- Share your knowledge.
- Really be wherever you are. Focus!
- Give all you have on every pitch.
- While alive, live!

Dennis and Donna McGough flank Haley Clark '10, Psychology, this year's recipient of the McGough Family Endowed Scholarship.

What Makes A Great Student?

YOU DO!

Your gift to the University of New Haven's Annual Fund will help our students achieve their dreams of earning a college education.

Your support enables the University to provide our students with an exceptional educational experience that will prepare them to have a positive impact on others.

Please support UNH by making a gift today. You can donate online at www.newhaven.edu/supportunh or use the envelope enclosed in this magazine.

WHY Give?

TRISTAN FIELDS '07 B.S., MUSIC AND SOUND RECORDING

ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR FOR ALUMNI AFFINITY PROGRAMS AND GRADUATE STUDENT IN EDUCATION, CORNELL UNIVERSITY

UNH ANNUAL FUND DONOR

FORMER STUDENT EMPLOYEE OF UNH PHONATHON

What Motivates:

Giving is my way of recognizing that my life is the way it is now because of the generosity of others. Everyone in this country, even if just in the smallest way, has benefited from charitable contributions. From the hospital in which one was born to the school one attends, all facets of society are sustained by charitable contributions. To ignore such an essential part of life in America is as counterproductive as breathing in without breathing out.

What Matters:

God, family, school, work, Alpha Phi Alpha and then everything else.

Why He Helps:

Higher education is more than just a service, it's an investment. While working for the UNH Phonathon, I came to realize that alumni, by investing in the University, were investing in me. I also received the UNH Presidential Scholarship, which was a defining factor in my decision to attend UNH. It's time for me to show a return on the investment.

WHY Give?

LAURA ENNIS, PARENT

Mother of Erin Ennis '10, Chemistry and Forensic Science. Erin is assistant editor of the Charger Bulletin, and a member of the Honors College, the 5-6-7-8- Dance Team, the Gaming Club and the Forensic Science and Chemistry Club.

Laura Ennis has contributed to the University's Annual Fund, the Building Fund for the Henry C. Lee Institute of Forensic Science, and the David A. Beckerman Recreation Center.

What Motivates:

Family is very important to me. I have tried to raise Erin to be a good person, hoping to instill in her the same life lessons that I had: to give, to volunteer. There's always someone out there who has a little bit more going on in their lives than in ours. My daughter was a great person when she began at UNH, and she is a better person for having been there for four years. It's an excellent school.

What Matters:

Erin was born with a displaced hip. We brought her to Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, and when we saw what other children were suffering with, we were so thankful for what we had. We had to go quite frequently, and several times over that period I said to myself, "when I have the opportunity to make a difference, I will."

Why She Helps:

Because Erin chose the Forensic Science program at the University of New Haven, I felt in my heart that giving to UNH would provide for other students who don't have so much. When UNH enhances itself, it has the opportunity to enhance the lives of its students. In turn, those students will give back to someone else, and the cycle will continue.

ELLIS C. MAXCY HERITAGE SOCIETY

The Ellis C. Maxcy Heritage Society is named for UNH's first President. Honored for his outstanding contributions to the University, Dr. Maxcy led New Haven College from 1932-1937. With his foresight and steady counsel spanning 48 years of service, the University established the foundation for its present level of excellence and achievement.

By becoming a member of the Ellis C. Maxcy Heritage Society and remembering the University through your will or estate plan, you are investing in the future of the University of New Haven. You open the doors of opportunity to promising students and provide an enduring legacy.

How to Become a Maxcy Heritage Society Member

You may become a member by:

- Naming the University as beneficiary in your will, trust or life insurance policy.
- Establishing a life income arrangement, such as a charitable remainder trust or gift annuity. These gift plans provide an income stream for life and ultimately benefit the University.
- Making UNH a beneficiary of your IRA.

Gift Opportunities

Many planned gifts allow you to creatively achieve your philanthropic and financial goals. Your planned gift to the University of New Haven could:

- Increase your lifetime income.
- Provide for family members.
- Unlock appreciated assets to produce greater annual income without being penalized by capital gains.
- Eliminate or reduce your tax burden.
- Make a generous gift to UNH.

Privileges of Membership

Once you become a member of the Ellis C. Maxcy Heritage Society, you will enjoy benefits that include:

- Special listings in University of New Haven publications.
- An annual reception with other members of the Society.
- Invitations to special events and academic seminars.
- Knowing that you have provided for future generations of deserving UNH students.

Please contact Timothy Stanton at 203-932-7285

or tstanton@newhaven.edu:

- If you have already included UNH in your will or estate plan, so we may thank and formally recognize you as a Maxcy Heritage Society member.
- If you would like to discuss joining the Society and exploring various giving strategies that may fit your particular circumstance.

Couple's Gift Reflects the Past, Significantly Affects the Future

one of several institutions that are very dear
to me.”

Tom Reynolds

Tom Reynolds '89 B.S., and Trina Reynolds have taken the long view in their approach to institutional giving. As a member of the Ellis Maxcy Society at the University of New Haven, Tom has left the University in his will, a gift that will have an impact for years into the future. “For me, the charities I place in my will are a way to leave a legacy,” says Tom, the assistant majority leader in the Connecticut House of Representatives and a state representative from the 42nd Assembly District. “UNH is one of several institutions that are very dear to me.” UNH seems to run in the family; Tom's brother, John J. Reynolds '87 B.A., is also a UNH grad. Trina supports her husband's allegiance to his alma mater. “We make our giving decisions jointly, and UNH had a significant impact on his life. We take advantage of any opportunity we have to give back.”

For information on making a planned gift, please contact
UNH Associate Vice President of Advancement Operations
Timothy Stanton at 203.932.7285 or email tstanton@newhaven.edu.
